

Novel hyaluronan-binding peptides are provided. The peptides are useful in preventing and treating disorders associated with altered tissue levels of hyaluronan or RHAMM, including cancer, inflammatory and autoimmune disorders and fibrotic disorders associated with tissue trauma.

5